

A positive outlook: Optimists' club forms in area

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Larry Banks still has large bills to pay from two daughters' weddings this year. He was in a car accident recently and has been forced to leave town on three occasions. In addition, Banks' position at Detroit Diesel Allison will be eliminated Aug. 1.

But other than that, Banks' life is as pleasant as ever and he is remaining optimistic that his future will be just as bright. And it's for this positive outlook on life that Banks is a member of the Optimist Club of Central Detroit and is one of several club members aiding in the founding of another Optimists branch in western Wayne County.

"The Optimist is a person who looks at the sunny side of everything - to think positive, to reach out and touch the fellow human being, to be a part of the solution instead of the problem," Banks said of the organization. "I have found that most of the things people worry about don't happen and those that do work out any way."

The group will stage an organizational meeting next Monday at the Red Apple Restaurant at Michigan Avenue and Venoy Road in Wayne. According to Banks, the meeting will be an official kickoff for the western Wayne County Optimist group, one that is hoped to attract several members from the cities of Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Romulus, Belleville and Canton, Van Buren and Sumpter townships.

Optimists club members meet weekly, Banks said, and strive to help youth in the community by educating and training them in order to "get them off the streets." Membership is open to men 18 years old or older and annual dues are $60. A $35 one-time initiation fee is also charged.

Banks explained that the group has two major projects each year which include helping the hearing impaired and a drug abuse program for teens. In addition, the Optimists periodically conduct field trips and lectures as well as sponsor an annual essay contest which features a $4,000 national first prize.

The local chapter will be one of 4,000 throughout North America, Banks said, striving to use the positive outlook on life of members to shed a brighter light on those with problems.

But membership in Optimists International isn't all work, Banks explained. Many social events are planned each year for members including luncheons, banquets and golf and tennis outings. It's a club with a goal, Banks added, but it's also one with a membership of very unique, positive-thinking individuals.

"We are all here on this earth to help people reach their goals and help them learn about themselves. A lot of times giving someone a positive outlook gets them doing something for themselves," Banks said.

The organizational meeting will begin at 6 p.m. Monday and all potential members are welcome.

The $60 annual dues will be waived for charter members, Banks said, and only the $35 initiation fee will be charged. For more information, call Banks at 592-7342.

Rowdy teenagers spell trouble with capital 'T'

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

While the mercury hovered at 93 degrees outside last Thursday, tempers at the fourth Neighborhood Watch meeting in the Romulus recreation building appeared even hotter.

"We're strong and getting stronger. Forty-five people attended this meeting in sweltering heat during the middle of summer. Together we identified a major problem. That problem is young adults," said Tony Kopas, organizer of the neighborhood watch in the Five Points area, one of the oldest sections of the city. "A majority of young people have nothing to do. In our area we have identified 10 teenagers, 15-16 years old, who are responsible for vandalism and breaking and entering homes and businesses in the area. Some residents have been harassed and even terrorized," said Kopas.

"Where is the police protection?" inquired Delores Witzgall who owns and operates the Polka Dot Party store along with her husband George. Their store on Goddard Road has been plagued with problems caused by neighborhood teenagers, according to the owners.

Since they opened their business two years ago, vandals have slashed nine tires on their cars and dumpster fires are a regular occurrence, according to the Witzgalls. Last Sunday, someone cut the wires on the store alarm system. Two days later, a brick smashed through the front picture window.

Forty-five people attended this meeting in sweltering heat during the middle of summer. Together we identified a major problem. That problem is young adults.

"We know who's responsible for this, but because not enough evidence exists, nothing can be done," said Witzgall. "We're helpless. The police come, they file their report but nothing happens. I've talked with the mayor and the police chief. Both told us we should get our own security force."

The Witzgalls have filed complaints and last July signed a warrant against a father of one of the teenagers. "I'm not getting any protection. Kids congregate outside of the store and harass customers. They taunt, 'You can't do anything to me because I'm a juvenile.' They toss firecrackers on the roof and their dog chases me down the street. The list goes on. Why am I paying taxes?" asked an exasperated Witzgall.

She claims her lawyer says there is not much she can do and the landlord turns a deaf ear. On many nights teenagers congregate in front of the store and drink beer, she said. Romulus Officer Eric Painter said, "We know the kids who are doing this but can't prove it. I've been to the party store on at least three different occasions. If this doesn't stop, someone will get physically hurt. And that's the problem. The kids are home before the glass stops sliding. There's not a lot we can do."

"This neighborhood is having problems. At this point all we can do is stress the importance of the Neighborhood Watch and parental control. Just the plight of this business emphasizes the necessity of this program," Painter said.

"The problem is not going away. We have nothing against any of these kids. Many residents have grown up with their parents. But if we don't do something now, it won't get better," stated Kopas.

All residents agree, the Neighborhood Watch program is already successful after only three months.

"We're positive. Problems have quieted down and identified. We are more alert and aware. The program helped us tear down imaginary picket fences and open avenues that will generate the warmth that exists in this community. People are more concerned for each other. This is one of the better areas of Romulus. But if we don't watch out for our neighbor, the neighborhood will deteriorate," explained Kopas.

"We can't just shift the problem from one spot to another. Instead, we need to get these young people involved in something constructive and want the city to sponsor such activities," Kopas said.

Neighbors at the meeting were issued identification or code numbers. These allow them to call police without being identified if they are hesitant about leaving such information. They spoke of additional street lighting. In the near future, the Five Points Watch Group will sponsor a block party.

Officer John Smagner stressed, "We are going to have the troops swing through the area more frequently to clear out any loitering teenagers. We're working on the problem and will take care of it."

Moped madness strikes 2

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Because they failed to obey not only a yield sign but several other traffic laws, two young girls were critically injured when their moped was broadsided by an automobile last Tuesday.

Twila Tucker, 13, of Romulus and Lamona Young, 12, of Inkster were thrown from their moped when they failed to yield the right of way and collided with an automobile driven by Robert Daniel, 26, of Romulus according to police reports of the incident.

Taylor Ambulance workers arrived on the scene and transported the two injured girls to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. Daniel, who police indicate maintained the 25 mph posted speed limit, and his lone passenger were uninjured by the impact.

Tucker and Young have since been treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Tucker, who operated the moped, wore a helmet and Young did not. The accident occurred about 12:30 p.m. at the intersection of Biddle and Ronald in northwest Romulus where a large evergreen tree on the southwest corner obstructed the vision of both drivers, according to Romulus Police Lieutenant Ken Kraus.

"A multitude of things contributed to this accident. They violated the law by riding double, being underage and not having an operator's license. It is important to get this message across: there are rules and regulations regarding mopeds," stressed Kraus.

Police Chief Charles Wilmoth again stressed, "All moped operators must have an operator's license and their moped or three-wheeled vehicle must be registered to ride on a public roadway."

He repeated the rules he emphasized earlier this spring:

- Mopeds can not exceed 30 m.p.h.
- Operators must be at least 15 years old or older and possess a valid license.
- Freeways, sidewalks and bicycle paths are prohibited.
- Operators are subject to the same laws which govern the driver of a motor vehicle.
- Only one person, the driver, can ride on the moped.
- A moped cannot attach itself to another vehicle nor can another vehicle be attached to the moped.
- Operators cannot carry a package or bundle which would prevent both hands from being on the handlebars.

- Operators under the age of 19 are required to wear a helmet.

"Persons involved in a moped accident stand a 85 percent chance of being killed or injured compared with 29 percent in other types of motor vehicle accidents. In addition, any traffic violation that a minor receives as a moped operator will be entered on their adult driving record. If they receive three, their regular driving license will be suspended until they are 18 years old," he said.

"Mopeds have the potential for disaster," said Youth Officer John Smagner. "Violators of the law will be ticketed and their vehicles impounded. If parents knowingly let their children operate a moped, they will be issued a traffic citation and asked to appear in district court. We will take whatever action necessary to avoid such an accident in the future," he said.

Police issued Tucker a ticket for failure to yield at the posted sign.

Cable offers new programs

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

If you thought cable was good before, wait till you switch to channel 40 and tune into the latest blockbuster to hit the small screen...the Romulus City Council meetings. Beginning this Thursday, city hall will be wired for sound, so to speak.

"City hall will be hooked up to the Barden Cable studio and channel 40, the community information channel. The channel will accommodate any city announcements from monthly meetings to any and all community and school events, even emergency situations," stressed Ray Williams, chairman of the Romulus Cable Commission.

"Home hookups are a one-way system. City hall now has two-way reception. Barden installed a monitor, generator and modulator. This will be able to broadcast any videotape but at the present time no live productions," said Williams.

Barden Cable Company recently completely wired 95 percent of the residences in the city of Romulus for cable television as required by the contract with the city, although there were several delays in meeting the initial completion schedule.

According to Williams, "It would be safe to say that every complaint I have heard of and 99 percent of the problems have been taken care of."

It would be safe to say that every complaint I have heard of and 99 percent of the problems have been taken care of.

Barden officials are equally pleased with the city cable hook-up. "We are very pleased and delighted in the response that we are getting from subscribers. The subscriber rate in Romulus has surpassed the rate in Van Buren (which began cable hook-up two years ago)," noted Ray Leporati, vice-president of Barden Communications.

Barden Cablevision of Romulus has also proposed a Public Access Training Class for 12 local people to include six citizens and six high school students if possible according to a letter received by Romulus High School principal E. L. Sheffield written by Linda Clark, director of studio programming and production at Barden.

"The classes are slated to begin Sept. 19 and run through Dec. 12 at 3:30 each Friday in the studio in Inkster," said Connie Madison, secretary on the Cable Commission.

The 12 students will learn production, direction, video and studio equipment. "The main focus of the program will be to provide students with an opportunity to experience the technical aspects of audio and video equipment as it relates to broadcasting, cablecasting and live productions," said Clark.

"Students will also gain as awareness of occupational options available should they decide to pursue a career related to studio productions," she added.

Man charged in officer injury

A man charged with the injury of a Romulus police officer was arraigned in circuit court last Tuesday and now awaits a trial date.

William Frederick Ridley was charged with felonious assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder. The charges stem from an incident which occurred in the late evening of June 23, when Officer John Hlinak investigated a malicious destruction of property complaint on Lisa in the northwest area of the city.

"Ridley was walking toward the police car and then took off running. When he entered his van, he squealed his tires and sped off with no lights on in the direction of Hlinak. Hlinak attempted to jump out of the path of the van but was struck in the right knee," police officials said.

Hlinak was treated for abrasions and contusions to the right leg and released the same day from the hospital.

Ridley was arrested the following evening and arraigned before Judge James Stone in the 34th District Court. Bond was set at $5,000.

"While at court, Ridley escaped and was subsequently arrested two hours later and then charged with the escape. He pleaded guilty to the charge and sentenced to serve 30 days in the Wayne County Jail where he now sits," according to Romulus Police Chief Charles Wilmoth.

dan's dogs

Dr. Lyndon Smith, a noted pediatrician, author and television personality, has placed the blame of many childhood temperament problems, nervous twitches, quirks and personality changes on the amount of refined sugar in the diet. The blood sugar level, he said, plays an enormously-powerful role in the behavior and energy of our children.

All that Dr. Smith wrote cannot be discussed at length here but, remembering how diet could affect children's temperament, we applied that thinking one day in class trying to calm down a very hyperactive dog.

The dog was not disobedient nor was it aggressive. It was simply so hyper it was driving the owner crazy. The only time the dog was still or quiet was when it was asleep. We tried every technique imaginable to calm down the dog. Nothing worked.

dan a. morris

One day, during class, the owner said, "If you don't start calming down you won't get your pancakes and syrup tomorrow for breakfast."

That was the answer! The owner of that over-energetic dog was guilty of feeding his dog sugar crispies, cookies, bacon and eggs, etc. for breakfast. He said he loved his dog so much he couldn't bear not sharing his breakfast with him.

We convinced the dog owner to wean his dog off "people food" and give him only dog food. A chunk of cheese or some cottage cheese on occasion would do no harm. But absolutely no table scraps from now on.

The dog's energy level changed overnight. The dog became calm and so did the owner.

Most nutrition books list sugar as a negative rather than a positive food. Only you can be the judge of what is best for your diet. Not being a physician, I cannot advise what anyone should eat. But I know veterinarians warn against feeding our pets table food.

CITY OF ROMULUS CHAPTER VIII ARTICLE 1.12

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER VIII, ARTICLE 1, KNOWN AS THE ROMULUS WATER AND SEWER ORDINANCE

WHEREAS: The City of Romulus deemed it in the best interest of the City and its citizens to amend Chapter VIII, Article 1, of the Romulus Code of Ordinances.

THE CITY OF ROMULUS ORDAINS:
Section 1. SHORT TITLE: AMENDED WATER AND SEWER ORDINANCE.

Section 2. Chapter VIII, Article 1, Section 1.1, Paragraph k is hereby amended to read as follows:

K. Sewer Debt charges. Are those charges imposed upon customers requiring a tap into the sewer system of the City. The funds generated from these charges shall be applied to retire outstanding sewer indebtedness incurred by the City in original construction and equipping of plants, mains, laterals, rights-of-way, or any other item of indebtedness incurred directly or indirectly in those capital improvements required to furnish sewer service to customers within the City. The term shall also include the costs of replacement, repair or extension of equipment to additional areas within the City.

Section 3. Chapter VIII, Article 1, Section 1.1, Paragraph q, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Q. Water Debt Charges. Are defined as those charges imposed by the City to retire outstanding water indebtedness incurred by the City in the original construction and equipping of plants, mains, laterals, rights-of-way, or any other item of indebtedness incurred directly or indirectly in those capital improvements required to furnish water to customers within the City of Romulus. The term shall also include the costs of replacement, repair or extension of capital equipment to additional areas within the City.

Section 4. Chapter VIII, Article 1, Section 6.1, Paragraph (a), is hereby amended to read as follows:

(a) Operation and Maintenance Fund. Out of the revenues in the Receiving Fund, operation and maintenance funds shall be deposited into a separate depository fund designated "Operation and Maintenance Fund."

Section 5. Chapter VIII, Article 1, Section 6.1, Paragraph (c) is hereby repealed.

Section 6. EFFECTIVE DATE. This amendment shall take effect immediately upon publication in a newspaper of general circulation.

Section 7. SEVERABILITY. Should any chapter, section, paragraph, provisions, sentence or clause of this amendment be declared by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such declaration shall not affect the validity of the amendment as a whole or any portion thereof other than that part so declared invalid.

I, Linda R. Choate, Clerk for the City of Romulus, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of an Ordinance duly adopted by the City Council of the City of Romulus, at its regular meeting held on the 7th day of July, 1986.

Back to school

Washington Elementary School in Westland, a long-time monument for many area residents, is scheduled to be razed later this year to make way for a small shopping mall. That news was greeted with mixed reactions in the community--while happy to see the revenue the sale of the school property generated, many expressed regret about the loss of the piece of history.

That regret is genuine, and many have fond memories of classes at the old school which has actually become more cherished in the time since the closing of the doors. That fondness for buildings which hold memories of days gone by, and the nostalgia associated with structures that are a testament to the past of a community are becoming an accepted part of municipal planning.

The long-popular theory of destroying the old to make way for the new is losing ground rapidly to a philosophy of preservation of the past and pride in the architecture of days gone by. Perhaps there is a means to apply that attitude in this situation.

In Frankenmuth, we're told, there is an old school remarkably similar to the Washington building. It, too, was slated for destruction so that a series of small shops and one larger retail outlet could be built. After some thought, a great deal of planning and a healthy dose of community involvement and pride, a plan evolved to use the building as it stood, with necessary alterations to adapt it to use as a mini-mall with small boutique-type shops and one major retailer.

The building has been successfully adapted and is popular with local shoppers and tourists alike. The suggestion that Washington School might be similarly adapted utilizing the experience of Frankenmuth was put forth this week by a local legislator who commented that such a project might be very conducive to promoting real community spirit and involvement.

He could be right.

The suggestion that the name of the mall commemorate Washington School has already been put forth by Wayne-Westland School Board member Sylvia Kozorosky, and other members have publicly admitted their fondness for the old building and the memories it evokes. There are a multitude of area people, including many outside Wayne and Westland, who went to school in the building and would, it appears, also like to see it preserved if possible.

While many things could prevent this--perhaps the building foundation is not strong enough to support the necessary construction alterations, or perhaps the stringent electrical, plumbing and building codes enforced in commercial buildings might be prohibitive and too costly in this instance. But, it is a good idea, and could prove a boon in marketing should Richards Investment Company, the new owners of the property, decide to take a risk.

It might be an out-of-the-ordinary undertaking for this company, which usually leans toward rather perfunctory, serviceable small malls containing an Arbor Drug Store outlet as the primary retail anchor. But, undeniably, this area needs something, some spark of development, some originality of thinking, design and construction, and some community participation to promote retail development. This just might be the start of something--if it is possible, given the obvious safety and legal restrictions.

Trappers Alley in downtown Detroit, near Greektown, is nothing but shops and restaurants installed in a remodeled fur warehouse and factory. Bricktown, also in Detroit, also relies on the charm of ancient factories and buildings to draw crowds. Many of the most popular shops in the shoppers' paradise of Plymouth are in old buildings or new ones built to emulate the charm of a bygone era. Ann Arbor, which is a mecca for shoppers from all over the tri-county area, also utilized the lure of remodded old structures and homes to create an atmosphere and ambience for shoppers with dollars to spend.

Local shoppers would, we think, respond to having something of this nature in the area. Should the developers undertake such a project, we feel our local community leaders would be more than supportive and helpful, and as a curiosity, if the right type of merchants could be lured to the converted school, the mall could draw shoppers from out of the area.

While we realize it may not be possible, if there is a chance, we would urge all involved to pursue the possibility, investigate the costs, and perhaps take a chance on our communities as a place to try something a little different.

It could be the first step in a journey of success.

Unsung heroes

They work hard, do their jobs, get little thanks and rarely, if ever, shirk from their duty and responsibility.

Newspapers only on special occasions ever print a word about them...perhaps only when they are born, marry, become a parent or die. I am, of course, referring to the millions of unheralded citizens who make this nation function.

This all too obvious, but frequently missed, thinking came to mind recently while observing one of the more outstanding citizens of Wayne, Donna McEachern.

Donna is the dedicated soul who, through thick and thin, attends to the myriad of details that result, when well done, in a functioning Chamber of Commerce. We rarely pay homage to those without whom the luncheons would not take place, the golf tournament would never occur, the newsletter would not exist, the board meetings, dues collecting, bill paying and other clerical functions of running an office would not happen. And on it goes, the list of work done routinely without a conscious thought from the other participants, or so it seems.

Wayne is fortunate, indeed, to have Donna as is Belleville to have Leona Van Bueler, Westland to have Joyce Wheeler and her dedicated assistant Doris Smith and Joan Bolek who directs the Canton Township Chamber of Commerce. Every Chamber, Rotary Club, city and township hall, fire department, police department, library, department of public works or other public office has people of dedication who are trustworthy, loyal and who do not waiver from their career tasks.

Newspapers, sadly, write about the exceptions to all of the above because the exceptions are, by their nature, news. When a government official is charged with embezzlement, it is news. An auto accident, robberies, rapes, assaults and other crimes are also news and find their way into print.

In business, too much of our time is occupied by the squeaky wheels, prima donnas and complainers. Those people inside the business and out who spend their time looking for the way out rather than for the way in. They say it is human nature to take the line of least resistance. It is, however, no great secret that there are those who make a career of that tactic.

Less prominent, yet seriously damaging to society are the white-collar criminals who steal time. They tell themselves they are doing it to the boss, but they actually are stealing from their fellow employees. These are the folks who work overtime, while taking extended lunch hours following several personal phone calls--on company time. They waste precious time looking for someone else on whom to blame their failures.

These are the minority, but they somehow regrettably counteract the good of the majority. Rarely is a person committed to wrongdoing. The game of shirking their charge or responsibility is one they play with themselves as well as the world. If they were conscious of their misdeeds, they would most probably desist.

Perhaps the best counter is the role model of those people who work on, doing their life's work without the recognition or praise given those more visible in the public eye. They don't wait for a pat on the head before doing their job. Most would like the positive feedback of hearing their work praised, but most thrive on job satisfaction and knowing they are performing to suit their own high standards. Such people deserve our admiration, and our praise.

For these people are the real unsung heroes of our society today. These are the workers who set the pace for the work ethic we should all hold dear and most of all, these are the people who hold the promise of America's future. See you next week.

A city by any other name. . .

"A hand with a pointing finger always has three fingers pointing back to you."

Perhaps those words of wisdom couldn't be traced back to one of the great Greek philosophers but, the message they reveal could give one Wayne resident a cold, cruel lesson in governmental democracy.

At the Wayne city council meeting last Tuesday, tempers were riled slightly as council members conducted a public hearing for the new city sidewalk program. As expected, many residents spoke requesting extra time to have their walkways in place while others needed clarification on the guidelines of the program itself.

But one resident blatantly missed the boat when he chastised the council members for the program, calling it a waste of money for the taxpayers and a benefit only to the premium rates for the city insurance policy.

"It's doing nothing for the city except burdening them," said the resident. "It's only going to save money for the city. You are not taking into consideration the homeowner."

While the resident probably only needed a medium to vent his frustration for another homeowner's expense that he most likely will have to incur, that same resident was severely short-sighted in making his remarks on behalf of the representatives he and his neighbors have picked to run this city.

This resident failed to realize that if the city saves money in insurance premiums, he too will benefit in not having to fund so large a budget for these costs next year. Likewise, if the city saves money in repairs, he too will save money in the same repairs.

City officials didn't come up with such a sidewalk program because they felt any personal urge to add to the coffers of the cement-pouring contractors. Neither did they endorse such a task to cause a burden or a hardship on any of the city residents.

Project deadlines have in each case been lengthened when requested and financial assistance has been available for the needy residents in the project. The city fathers have been helpful. This resident has not.

Perhaps what this one Wayne man should realize is that this program--and many others--are for his own benefit and for the benefit of his neighbors in the city. The program is for his safety, for the safety of pedestrians and each person who sets foot on the sidewalks which have been severely torn by time and the elements.

No, the council members have not imposed a burden on the residents. Neither have their endorsed an idea that would be self-serving and benefit only the city budget.

No, this program is for the city, its residents, its officials and its taxpayers. Perhaps sometimes when we say "the city" we forget just who the city actually is.

Come to think of it, this program will "save money only for the city." But, that's you, that's me, and that's the businesses and everyone else in between.

local news in brief

Free meals are still available

WAYNE COUNTY — A federally-funded free meal program is still available during the summer months for all children living in Canton Township, Inkster, Romulus, Wayne and Westland.

The Summer Food Service program provides nutritious lunches and breakfast in areas where most children receive free or reduced-priced school meals during the year.

The program is for all children, regardless of income.

Included in the list of sites for the free-meal program are:

- Canton Commons, 1568 Stacy, Canton;
- Carver Elementary School, 28865 Carlyle, Inkster;
- Daly Elementary School, 25824 Michigan Ave., Inkster;
- Demby Recreation Center, 4360 Hickory, Inkster;
- Jefferson Elementary School, 32150 Dorsey, Westland;
- Westwood District Office, 25912 Annapolis, Inkster;
- Woodson Elementary, 29665 Pine, Inkster;
- YWCA of Western Wayne County, 26279 Michigan Ave., Inkster.

Most sites are now serving either five or six days per week throughout the summer. For more information, call 467-3338.

Agency needs reports

INKSTER — Officials from the Inkster Social Security office reminded Social Security recipients of the requirement to inform the agency of any changes that might affect their continued eligibility or the amount of their monthly checks.

In addition, the officials announced a new benefit for state and local government employees.

These workers who have never before been covered under Social Security are now eligible for coverage. Individual information is available from the local Social Security office.

The office is located at 2500 Hamilton Blvd. at Inkster Road and Michigan Avenue. Phone information is available by calling 963-1500.

Area drivers sought

DETROIT — The Deaf-Blind Club of Detroit is seeking volunteer drivers to bring club members to meetings.

Drivers receive a small cash allowance to help cover the cost of gas and car use. Orientation to deaf-blind communication and sighted-guide techniques will be provided.

For more information, call 272-3900.

County gets grant

WAYNE COUNTY — The Wayne County Department of Health has received a $315,000 three-year federal grant to combat infant mortality by helping pregnant women stop smoking, county officials announced last week.

A Smoking Cessation program will be offered free of charge to women of child-bearing age. Priority will be given to low-income women who use county prenatal, WIC, family planning and other health services. Registration will be at the Health Department offices in both Inkster and Westland.

Job training available

WESTLAND — Free job training is being offered for residents of Wayne, Westland, Belleville, Canton Township and Inkster at the Employment and Training Center of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. Openings are available in clerical/office practices, accounting and computing, electronics, restaurant occupations, auto repair, health and printing operations and building maintenance.

The center is located at 36105 Marquette Road, Westland. For registration, call 595-2314.

Inkster to join cleanup

By SHERRY WOODARD
ANP Staff Writer

Although several communities and corporations have pitched in to help, Saturday, July 26, it will be the citizens of Inkster who will be called on especially to help save the polluted Rouge River.

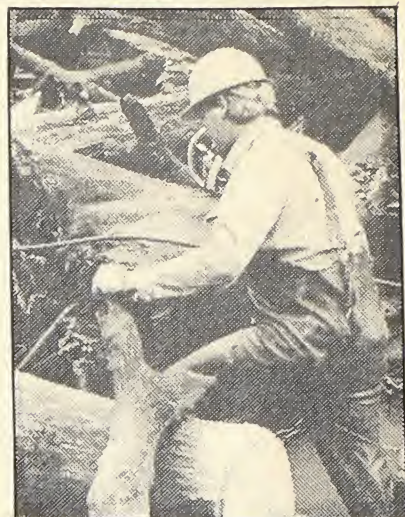

The Saturday cleanup effort will represent the second time attention has been focused on that section of the foul waterway that runs through the city of Inkster.

Registration for volunteers will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Ice Arena parking lot. Work on the Rouge will begin following registration.

All Inkster residents will receive t-shirts donated by Detroit Edison.

Volunteers will help rid the river of logs and debris. City workers will be on hand for the effort and will provide trucks to assist in the removal of the debris.

However, volunteers are asked to bring any large pieces of equipment capable of wenching or pulling logs from the river. Volunteers are also asked to bring ropes, chains and chainsaws.

ROUGE: rescue '86 slated for Inkster Saturday

City officials suggest cleanup crew members wear caps or scarves, boots and gloves.

A similar project was staged last month in nearby Wayne where a 100-foot log jam behind Wayne Memorial High School had created an erosion problem for residents along the banks of the river.

The Rouge Rescue '86 cleanups are being sponsored this year by the Friends of the Rouge River and several area civic groups and local department of public works crews. Several cleanup sites were featured in the first portion of the effort with the Inkster project Saturday marking the second part of the multi-stage project.

Ray Day contributed to this report.

capitol column

Governor James J. Blanchard recently signed into law House legislation creating a new grant program to assist adult, part-time undergraduate students who have been out of high school for a least two years.

House Bill 4471 (now Public Act 102 of 1986) provides for a maximum grant award of $600 per year for two years to eligible students. If the number of eligible applicants in a given year exceeds the amount of money available, grants will be awarded based on greatest financial need.

The program, one of two new student aid ideas supported by governor Blanchard last year, is funded at $2 million in the current 1985-86 budget. It is aimed at the many adult students who find it hard to get financial assistance because they must attend school on a part-time basis.

These adult students also have assets or incomes that are too large to qualify them for typical college student loans,

kosteva

However, they are often dealing with budget constraints, due to family obligations, that limit their ability to pay for college education just as much as any other students.

In recent years a number of adult workers, because of rapid technological changes in the workplace, have become displaced or had their jobs seriously threatened. The commitment to increased adult student loan programs in a significant indicator that the state intends to continue its efforts at helping adult workers develop their talents and acquire the skills necessary to accommodate the needs of our changing economy.

In fiscal year 1986 the state is providing a record $75.7 million for student financial aid programs. This figure represents nearly a 50 percent expansion since 1983.

Searching the family tree

Local woman unroots her heritage

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Joan Meaker of Wayne delights in finding birth certificates, death records and accounts of the early happenings in Monroe County. She is equally elated when her expeditions to old cemeteries and historical collections at local libraries net her more information about her family roots.

And, after 20 years of excitement, she will admit that her search for Cones is far from complete.

Meaker is a genealogist who has joined the flock of other Americans in making tracing family histories the second most popular in-home hobby in the country. Although the hobby has at times done more than filled her leisure time, Meaker said that going back into family history can be gratifying, exciting and a bit fascinating as she learns tips about her family she would otherwise not know.

"I started in 1966. My father had died and I wanted to give my mother something to do," Meaker said of her first attempts at tracing her roots. "I went and looked up the information and sent it to my mother and she typed it for me."

Like most other people who have taken on the grueling task of following the family lineage back three, four and even five centuries, Meaker was at first confused about where to begin. After a few letters and calls to her living relatives and a decision to trace her father's line were made, Meaker set off one day to the Detroit Public Library downtown in hopes of delving past the few inklings of information she had already received.

"I went to Burton (the Burton historical collection at the Detroit library) and I looked for the name. I found the book on the bottom of a stack of books. I sat right down on the floor, pulled that book off the shelf and found my grandfather's name," Meaker said of her first day as a genealogist.

Meaker admitted that she spent the entire day at the library and every possible day after. The next task was to obtain a copy of the book she found in Detroit, a book that already had outlined the Cone family history to 1662.

Meaker wrote a Massachusetts book store asking for a copy in 1967. In 1973, book store officials wrote back and forwarded a copy of the book to Meaker for a small fee.

Although the book had eliminated much of the work before her, Meaker set out to prove the events listed from each generation by obtaining copies of the original birth certificates, marriage licenses, death certificates and any other published document she could find. A wealth of the information she was seeking was found among some old papers her dad had stored in the attic while more information became available from trips to the Monroe County Library and State of Michigan record department.

Meaker was able to trace her family to the early 1600s in Scotland. She found that one of her ancestors was taken prisoner in the Battle of Dunbar between Scotland and England and was sent to the New World by the English crown for seven years of punishment.

The Cone family first settled in Connecticut but later moved to Vermont and New York before arriving in what is now Monroe County, Mich. Trips to the family cemetery in Monroe have become proof to Meaker that her documented evidence and further research is true while it makes her family roots appear clearer each year.

Meaker's huge collection of photographs and documentation of her family heritage have enabled her to join such a prestigious group as the Daughters of the American Revolution. In addition, a look back into her husband's family line enabled him to become a member of the Descendants of the Mayflower Society.

Although an honor and certainly a highlight of her work in genealogy, Meaker said that the DAR membership doesn't compare with her membership in the Dearborn Genealogical Society. According to Meaker, it is this group of area amateur genealogists that has provided her with the know-how and tools to dig back successfully into the past.

Today, the retired elementary school

You just never run out of family to do . . . It puts butterflies in your stomach.

— Joan Meaker

teacher from the Wayne-Westland Community Schools still makes two or three trips each month to the Monroe area in search of a birth certificate, death record or marriage license. She also has now begun digging for her mother's ancestry as well as her husband's.

A bit time consuming for the mere chart that lists the family history, perhaps, Meaker will admit of her work in genealogy, but, nonetheless, a challenge and experience that she could compare only to love and the birth of spring.

"You just never run out of family to do. It's a great hobby for retired people," Meaker said. "When you find something, it's very, very exciting. It puts butterflies in your stomach."

Although she has never been able to trace her family line back to that of royalty or prominence, Meaker is nonetheless proud of those who have gone before her. The Cone family garnered countless achievements in the Monroe area, Meaker said, and a street has even been named in the family honor.

One account of her mother's history linked Meaker as a relative out of marriage to Napoleon Bonaparte.

But fame, notoriety or even a lost inheritance aren't the reasons Meaker has taken a look back into her family heritage. The lack of a better hobby isn't the reason either as her love for collecting buttons could likewise occupy her time.

No, these things seem just matters of trivia, Meaker explained, when compared to the feeling of elation, of joy and of pride when finding that one last birth certificate, letter or shipping record that clearly details the events of a family that have gone silently before her.

Where do you start?

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Digging for your family roots isn't as easy as gardening, Joan Meaker said, but by following a few basic steps, it is within reach.

The first step, Meaker said, is to start with yourself. That includes when and where you were born, your parents and grandparents. Filling out a family chart can be helpful as can old family Bibles, letters and stored documents.

Meaker was adamant in saying that membership in a genealogical group was important. "This to me helped the most," Meaker said.

The Dearborn Genealogical Society is one local group which meets each month to gain insight into the art of genealogy. Membership information is available by writing: Dearborn Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 1112, Dearborn, MI 48121.

"The groups have speakers and lectures and give you hints on where to look for information," Meaker said. "I was working on my husband's line and I was at a standstill. One evening we had a workshop and one of the members told me to look in the 'Old Families of Fairfield.' I went down to Burton and found the information."

The Burton Historical Collection in the downtown branch of the Detroit Public Library is perhaps the best local source of information for a genealogist in this area, Meaker said. Family records and county accounts date back to the early 1600s and copying facilities are available at the library.

"Anyone in this area should really go down to Burton and search. Look for your own (See FAMILY TREE, page B-2)

Books after books of notes and data are a key part of genealogical research, Meaker said.

Prove it

State gives pioneer recognition for birthday

As part of the celebration for the 150th birthday of the state, the Michigan Genealogical Council and the Library of Michigan are offering a commemorative Sesquicentennial Pioneer Certificate to people who can prove that they are a direct descendant from an ancestor who settled in Michigan prior to Dec. 31, 1837.

A similar program was initiated by the two groups during the bicentennial celebration for the country but, ancestral data was needed only through 1876. The current award is hoped to honor those pioneers and founders of the state who were present when Michigan became an official part of the country in January of 1837.

To receive a certificate, a lineage chart and an application form must be sent to the Library of Michigan before Dec. 31, 1987. A separate application should be completed for each sesquicentennial ancestor.

Enscribed on the certificate will be the ancestor's name along with the 1987 descendant.

Proof of the lineage must be primary documents — documents such as vital records, probate records, land records, tax records, federal, state or county census records, military records as well as church, mortuary, cemetery and court records.

Supplemental evidence may also be included such as Bible records, obituaries and newspaper clippings, tombstone inscriptions and published family histories, however, these proofs may or may not be accepted as proof of lineage.

Application forms are available at several area libraries and at local genealogical societies. Send all completed materials to:

A Sept. 20 wedding is planned.

genealogy to see if one has already been written for your family," Meaker said.

While documentation and family records can many times be found in libraries and county record collections, any study in genealogy wouldn't be complete without some resources from relatives, Meaker said. Letters should be written to all living relatives, she said, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope included.

Many times, the relative won't want to bother with the information or won't remember enough to be useful, Meaker continued. However, the cost of a stamp and a letter is sure worth the possibility of finding out information that otherwise might be unattainable, she added.

In addition, a genealogical study may find the genealogist traveling to old cemeteries, hidden corners of old towns, Mormon libraries, as well as overseas. All of these are viable proofs in determining an exact account of the family tree.

However, Meaker cautioned, only governmental documents such as birth certificates, death records, census records, burial permits and official papers will many times be accepted as proof if you intend to publish your history or be accepted for membership in many historical societies.

And although it may be very time consuming and at times a bit expensive, genealogical research has its own rewards, Meaker said.

An Invitation to A Michigan Family Reunion.

Michigan's Sesquicentennial is a wonderful opportunity to celebrate a number of things... not the least of which are family and friends. Because with so many things to see and do there will never be a better time to invite the people you love to the state you love. And to make the welcome official, if you like, Governor Blanchard would be delighted to send a letter of invitation and information about Michigan to any out-of-state guest you name. Just call 1-800-MICH150 or use the coupon. And make this a reunion you, your family and friends will always remember.

Put-In-Bay offers local cruise excitement

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

Have summer re-runs of "Love Boat" prompted you to day dream of lounging on a deck chair, sipping icy beverages and watching the ocean waves?

Perhaps an ocean cruise isn't in your budget or your time schedule, but the Arawanna Queen Cruises can provide you with a mini-voyage at a reasonable cost in both time and money. The day-long trip departs from Toledo at 9 a.m., cruises to Put-in-Bay and returns at 9 p.m.

The captain runs a "tight ship" and adheres to the schedule - leaving the Portside Dock promptly at 9 a.m. Soon after pulling into the Maumee River, the crew - young college men and women - burst into song and then begin serving the buffet breakfast. Throughout the cruise, shows which feature various members of the crew, are performed on first, second and top decks. There is even a bingo game for the enthusiasts who can't spend a day without hearing the siren call of "B-12 and O-67."

When they aren't singing, dancing or calling bingo numbers, the young men and women are ready to bring you an icy beverage, a cushion for your deck chair or provide you with information about the sights along the lake shore.

Don't expect the quality of a Broadway show, but be prepared for some good performances from the enthusiastic cast.

After approximately three and one-half hours, the Arawanna Queen pulls into its dockage at Put-in-Bay and the passengers disembark for a few hours at the island resort. There are many sights to see during the allotted time, so visitors should budget their hours. A train tour will take you around the island, stopping at several points of interest, or you may opt to rent a bicycle or a golf cart to go sightseeing on your own.

The village itself has a leisurely, turn-of-the century charm and abounds with gift shops, restaurants and snack bars. Every old building has a story and the seemingly always-cheerful shopkeepers and waiters will be pleased to serve you a little history with your order.

One of the "musts" on the tour is a stop at the Heineman Winery - the last active winery on the island. A guide will describe the wine-making process, show you through the plant and provide you with a sample of wine or grape juice following the tour. A tour through the small, but interesting, Crystal Cave is included in the package.

Another of the popular tourist attractions is the Perry Victory and International Peace Memorial - a 352-foot granite column commemorative the American naval victory in the 1813 Battle of Lake Erie.

It's back to the cruise ship at 4:30 p.m. to settle down for the 5 p.m. departure. A sumptuous buffet is served at 6 p.m. and passengers can lounge on the open top deck or relax on the enclosed first and second decks.

If a day-long trip isn't your cup of tea, the Toledo River Cruise Lines offer dinner cruises, dance cruises and a zoo cruise for the youngsters. Information is available by calling 419-698-5031. Bon Voyage!

Area kids learn kitchen essentials

By JOAN MARY DYER
ANP Staff Writer

There are 150 new, young cooks in the Westland area, all eager to try out their skills at making treats such as "Bomber Burritos," "Earth Bunny Smoothie" and "Corny Banana Buns."

Guided by Chef Larry Janes, who authors a cooking column in the Associated Newspapers, the youngsters from ages 5 through 12 attended classes at the Westland Mall.

For the younger children, the classes were a basic introduction to cooking skills and safety in the kitchen, according to Chef Larry. The youngsters start off blending a banana with fresh carrot juice and ice cream for a "Smoothie," then mix up a batch of muffins. Next, they work together to prepare a fruit salad and, finally, the main course of the meal — "Bomber Burritos." Whether it was the name or the taste, the "Bombers" seemed to be a big hit with the youngsters.

The kids not only prepare the foods, but at the end of the class period they share the lunch that they have worked together to stir, mix, chop, blend and bake. And, it is a meal fit for a king — or, perhaps, a prince or princess.

Chef Larry goes a step further with the older children to explain the differences in food flavors, which foods compliment one another and how spices affect the flavor of various dishes.

Each youngster receives a copy of the recipes that he or she has helped to make when the session is over plus the newly-found knowledge that cooking can be fun!

After taste-testing the following recipes, the 150 participants at the Westland Mall classes voted a resounding "yum" for Chef Larry's recipes.

CORNY BANANA BUNS (Makes 12 with any fruit)

- 1 cup (3 medium) ripe bananas, mashed
- 1/2 cup safflower oil
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 1/2 cup rolled oats
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Cream oil and honey. Add eggs, one at a time. Combine dry ingredients and mix well. Add to honey mixture alternating with bananas. Bake in muffin papers at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until golden and firm to the touch. (Have mom help with the oven setting and handling the hot muffin tins).

AMBROSIA FRUIT SALAD (Can be made with any fruit)

- 1 cup vanilla low-fat yogurt
- 1 cup pineapple chunks
- 2 bananas, sliced
- 1 apple, seeded and cut into chunks
- 1 orange, made into segments
- 1/2 cup shredded coconut
- 1/2 cup sunflower seeds

Place fruit in a large, non-metallic bowl. Cover with yogurt and toss gently. Sprinkle with coconut and nuts, toss gently. Refrigerate until really chilled!

The soup's on for a cooler summer

It just so happens that I'm writing this story on one of the hottest days of the year. The temperature reached 96 today and at 10:45 p.m., as I write this, it's now 84 with a humidity reading of about 99 percent.

The fan is doing a great job circulating hot air. The cup of ice I was chomping on (remind me to send an apology note to my dentist) has long since melted away, leaving a large puddle of melted frost that slowly inched its way over to completely soak the water bill beyond recognition. (Poetic justice, you say?)

My intentions were originally honorable. I had intended to write this article about baking blueberry muffins but even the thought of entering a kitchen seems repugnant, let alone turning on the stove and baking.

Let's clear our minds for the next few minutes. Close your eyes, take a deep breath and think about something cool.

Something refreshing. Something lower in calories than a Dove Bar.

Something nourishing. Something that could be sinfully rich.

Something low-cost, or at least reasonably affordable.

Soup. Yep, soup. Cold soup. Chilled soup. Iced soup. Soup you can sink your teeth into.

When researching this article, it was noticed that many chilled soups call for an initial pre-cooking of some of the ingredients. Forget it. Not these recipes. If you're lucky enough to own a blender or a food processor, make a quick dash to an all air-conditioned grocery store (try not to sit on the ice cream freezer, please) and pick up a few of the needed necessities, throw everything in the blender, and be prepared to sip in elegance in about one hour.

One hour? When I make chilled soups folks, they get pureed into small bowls that are immediately placed in the freezer. This chills them faster and as soon as a thin ring of ice begins to form around the inside of the bowl, they are removed, stirred to incorporate the sudden frost into the hearty broth and immediately enjoyed with only the best Stella D'Oro breadsticks money can buy.

For the more patient and less sweaty, soups can be chilled directly in the refrigerator using glass casseroles.

A few words of caution regarding the preparation of your final masterpiece. Most herbs and spices have a tendency to become overpowering if allowed to "brew" slowly in a chilled environment. This can be embarrassing, especially when the small clove of garlic you added to incorporate a "whisper of garden freshness" has just overpowered your vichyssoise like a $1.99 bottle of cheap cologne from "Eau de K-mart."

chef

If you have access to fresh herbs, prepare the recipe but leave out all the herbs and spices and stir them in about 30 minutes before you serve your creation. With a little luck, you can achieve a subtleness of taste that even Julia Child could appreciate!

Try substituting more delicate green onions for stronger, overpowering yellow ones. Canned, diced potatoes can easily be substituted for cooked potatoes, again sparing you the necessity to heat up the house by precooking.

Make your summer dinners cool-as-a-cucumber by stirring in precooked shrimps, mashed avocados and even left-over boned chicken shreds. Pureed corn makes an excellent thickener. Keeping an eye on the battle of the bikini bulge? Substitute plain, unflavored yogurt for cream and sour cream!

When serving your cool creations, garnish them with paper-thin slices of fresh lemon or lime and a sprig of mint!

Excuse me while I turn off the fan. Is it getting cold in here or what?

Bon Appetit!

CHILLED AVOCADO SOUP (Easily serves 4-6)

- 2 avocados, peeled and pitted
- 1/2 cup half-and-half
- 2 cups canned chicken broth
- 1/2 medium tomato, peeled and seeded
- 1/2 of small clove garlic, smashed
- chopped chives or scallions for a garnish

Combine all ingredients in a blender or processor and blend till smooth. Chill. Garnish, enjoy!

BONECHILLING CREAM OF BROCCOLI SOUP (Makes 6 cups)

- 2 cups chicken broth
- 2 (10 oz.) packages frozen chopped broccoli
- a small snippet of bay leaf (about the size of a dime)
- 2 cups plain yogurt (or cream)
- 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
- dash tabasco

Allow chopped broccoli to thaw. Press out any water using a colander. Place broccoli and remaining ingredients in a blender or processor and blend till smooth. For a really neat taste, just before serving, sit in 1/4 cup chilled white wine. (The sweeter the better!)

THE CHEATERS CHILLED MINTED PEA SOUP (Serves 4)

- 1 can (10 oz.) condensed pea soup
- 2 cup cans of milk
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped mint
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons fresh chopped chives
- dash tabasco
- 1/2 cup half-and-half
- A dollop of sour cream to garnish

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients and stir with a wire whisk to max completely. Chill in the refrigerator for at least 2 hours. Garnish with sour cream and mint sprigs.

ICED FRESH TOMATO SOUP (Serves 6-8)

- 4 pounds ripe tomatoes
- 1/4 teaspoon dried basil
- 2 green onions, chopped fine
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup dry white wine

Peel and seed tomatoes. This is optional, and not a necessity, but the finished product will be more eye-appealing! Combine all ingredients in a blender or processor and process until smooth. Chill, then stir before serving.

STRAWBERRY WINE SOUP (Serves 4)

- 2 cups fresh sliced strawberries
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup water
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon water
- 1 cup dry white wine
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
- a splash of brandy or cognac

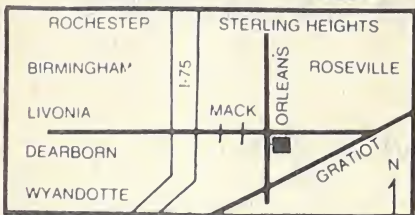

Combine strawberries, sugar and water. Allow to stand for 30 minutes, stirring frequently until sugar is dissolved. Stir in cornstarch binder, then puree in a blender or processor until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients, chill. For added flavor, stir in 1/4 cup sour cream!

wall street - the week ahead

Fed tactics start working

It appears that the Federal Reserve strategy of rapidly increasing market liquidity to stimulate economic activity may be starting to take effect. It appears from Federal Reserve data that both sectors, consumer and business, have accumulated cash reserves to the extent that they feel compelled to increase spending. The Fed's recent statement that they plan to continue increasing money supply (M-1) may have the effect of increasing economic activity beyond reasonable target ranges. It will take additional analysis to determine if this trend will continue. If in fact later data supports this trend, we may well expect interest rates to move higher. With the stated determination of the Fed to push interest rates lower, it has reduced selling pressure on bonds. For this week, bond prices will be mixed, with some selling pressure coming from increased activity in gold markets. This week, gold prices will be mixed to higher, as speculators try to sort out Fed data from Fed statements. Silver continues to trail the market.

For this week, the short term traders will use any market strength to close out positions. As a group, they may be slightly more negative than positive. Intermediate-term traders will continue to be sellers of large capitalized issues. Long-term traders will be sellers of large capitalized issues, but will continue to hold secondary issues.

For this week, I see the market mixed, as no one segment of

traders will prevail. The recent market decline has set the stage for bargain hunters to move the buy side, and support the market. However, traders will be willing sellers, and this will blunt the effect of buying support. For the most part, this will be a mixed market that will change directions several times, in response to any rumor, news release, or earnings report. The market generally will trend lower, without any external influence.

NOTE: General Motors slashing capital spending for the next few years; U.S. budget deficit to grow to $220 billion, an all time record; Industrial output fell .5% in June for the fourth decline in five months; Retail sales up .2% in June; Business sales plunged 1.8% in May, the steepest drop in over 8 years; LTV files Chapter 11, the largest industrial concern to ever do so. MARKET "AVERAGES": DOW = 1777.98; TRANS=727.25; UTIL=200.49; NYA = 136.35; S&P = 236.37; VLIC = 230.13; OEX = 224.16; AMEX XMI = 340.05.

The butcher

By RAY DAY
ANP News Editor

Reggie Nickerson will admit that the trend toward going to the butcher shop each week has declined in recent years due to competition with the large supermarkets. But, the 36-year-old Canton butcher is confident that the trend will be changing in years to come and area residents will be bringing home the bacon from a different source.

Nickerson has worked at John's Butcher Block on Lilley and Warren roads for about six months. Before becoming a "small town" butcher, the Inkster native worked as a meat cutter for Krogers.

"It's a good business. The people are really friendly," Nickerson said of the butcher business. "I get a lot of satisfaction when a woman comes back in the store and says my steaks were great."

Having worked in the chain-store butcher shop setting for nine years, Nickerson feels he is an expert on judging the benefits of buying meat from a local meat market and the neighborhood supermarket. While quality and prices are many times comparable at both places, Nickerson said, the personalized service received at the butcher shop far outweighs any advantages of going to the large grocery stores.

"The people who shop at the butcher shop are the people who want good quality and that extra service. It's that little personal touch that you get at the butcher shop that matters," Nickerson remarked.

"People have this thing in their head that a butcher shop is more expensive. But, really it's not. People don't mind spending an extra dime for the service they get here."

As for who goes to the butcher shop these days, Nickerson said it's not the rich, the poor nor the middle-class citizens. "It's all kinds of people," he said.

"We get a lot of people who come in every week. Mostly it's women. They buy their luncheon meat and their fresh meat here," Nickerson continued.

While Nickerson has learned to cater to the mostly-female customer at the store, the butcher shop manager and meat cutter likes the male shoppers even better. According to Nickerson, when the men come in and see "nice looking meat" they buy more, while the women buy only what they need.

Butcher shops suffered a substantial drop in business, Nickerson explained, after the economic recession of the early 1980s.

"People think the old-time butcher shop is on the way out. I think soon in time it will be back in when people realize they are getting a better product and good service," said Nickerson.

NICKERSON: He likes to give the personal touch

The baker

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Old world flavor saturates the fresh baked breads, cakes and pastries made from scratch by the young Yugoslavian couple who operate Le Cakery Bake Shop on Wayne Road in Westland.

Pauline, 27, and Donce, 28, Dimovski opened their own family business two years ago after working at several local bakeries in the metropolitan area.

They brought with them from their native homeland, several generations of experience in the baking business. Just over 10 years ago, Pauline and Donce, better known as Danny, individually immigrated to America and settled near Detroit.

"No, we didn't know each other before we came here. We both worked at different local bakeries when we met. I was a cake decorator and Danny was a master baker. We mixed well," she joked.

There's a big difference between working in a bakery and owning one, according to Dimovski who worked in factories before his first entrepreneurial endeavor. Either way, both Dimovskis love their business.

"I like being with people," said Pauline. "That's the best part. If I could do it, I would only work up front. I used to bake for my family. My husband does the baking for the business because he's better."

Pauline explained that in one week, LeCakery will sell between 250 and 300 cakes! Those customers with a sweet tooth come from all around the metropolitan area. They come to purchase wedding, birthday, shower or any-occasion cakes in all shapes and sizes.

"Cakes are our speciality. They're moist, light and delicious. The frosting is real buttercream. We even offer free samples. Once people try just a bite, they place their order," said Dimovski.

Cakes are decorated in several themes from Care Bears to Superman. "Danny likes to bake different things. I like to experiment with different decoration designs. The results are always satisfying," she related.

"The only problem," she confessed, "is there are too many hours. It's not unusual to work 19 hours a day. This is our first bakery business. Our four helpers offer a lot of assistance. We have two children, Jamie, 5, and Micheal, 4, who at this point can put the paper cups in the cupcake pans. They're learning," she sighed.

"It won't be long before they'll be here 24 hours like us. There's always something to do," she said.

"We like this location. Soon we'll be settled enough to advertise," she said.

Then everyone in the area can eat cake.

The candle(stick) maker

Candlestick and candle makers are hard to come by these days. But don't tell two budding entrepreneurs in Canton who are depending on the wax and wicks to light their ways to success in the business world.

Carol Wolfram gave her friend Litia Woods one of her homemade candles for Christmas 18 years ago. Woods was impressed at the fine handcraft. In fact, she was so impressed that she talked Wolfram into doing what was once only a holiday hobby into an everyday business.

The two are the owners of Lite My Wick, a candle-making business they operate out of Wolfram's Canton Township home. Although business started off on a slow note, Woods reported that candle making in the area is finally beginning to flare up.

"Right now, most of our business is for weddings and a close second is for gifts. We also have open houses and a mailing list," Woods said.

Wolfram has converted the living room of her ranch-style home into a showroom for the wax figurines of Santa Claus, hand-crafted wedding candles and floating candle centerpieces which have become a huge success at wedding receptions. She also has converted her garage into a candle-making workshop complete with molds, dippers, blocks of wax and a gear-and-chain device her husband designed that dips taper candles in and out of the liquid wax until they are at perfection.

Both Woods and Wolfram work full time besides their candle business and report that getting time to mold the wax and fit the wicks is sometimes hard to come by. However, both are ready to leave their positions once the candle business lights up and ensures them a steady income.

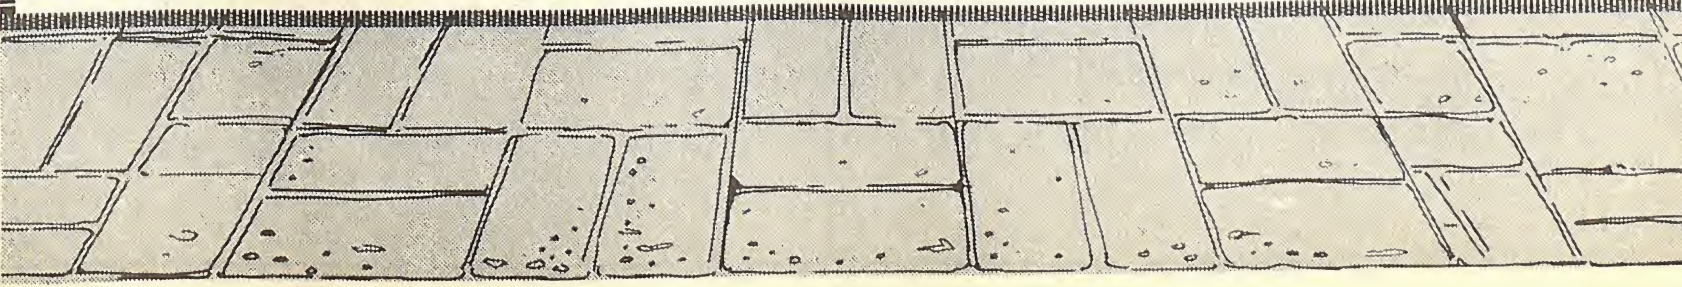

All the candles sold at Lite My Wick are hand-made, Woods said, and all are produced using a secret formula of wax and a few "special" additives. The large wax blocks are broken into pieces and then melted down to a liquid state.

Then the molten wax is carefully poured into respective molds and allowed to cool. This process must be repeated about three times, Woods said, as wax tends to contract and form air bubbles when it hardens.

Currently, the products of their labors are available only at craft shows, a few novelty shops in Canton and at home parties hosted by the two. However, Woods said, a just-recently-signed contract with a card store distributor should have their wicks and wax figurines popping and lighting up throughout western Wayne County in the near future.

WOODS: She wants the area to take to her wax and wicks

'Sudden death' decides city golf champ

Horn breaks deadlock with victory on 3rd hole

It took three extra holes for Michael Horn to shake off Inks-ter's Kevin Ryan to win the thrilling 1986 City Cham-pionship Golf Tournament staged over the weekend in blistering heat at Hilltop in Ply-mouth Township.

The 22-year-old Horn, making his first appearance at the tournament, sank a short putt on the third hole of the playoff—the 377-yard, Par 4 to edge Ryan by a stroke. Ryan saw his hopes of winning his second title dashed when he drilled his ball in a pond and took a penalty stroke.

"I thought it was all over for me on the first (playoff) hole," said an elated Horn. "I am really happy to win. This is the first time I've been in this tournament and the first time I have played Ryan. I feel fortunate to have won."

Ryan had his opportunity to end the drama on the first hole.

"I feel fortunate to have won."
— Medalist Mike Horn

The two golfers were forced into the "sudden death" play-off when Ryan rallied for a par 70 on the second day to go with his first round 78 for a 36-hole total of 148. Incidentally Ryan's par 70 was the only par carded for the tough 6,416-yard

Hilltop course.

Horn, a recent Wayne State University graduate, garnered 73 for the first round and check-ed into the clubhouse with a 75 for his 148 total.

On the first playoff hole, along for the playoff drama. "And, it's unfortunate because Kevin has been putting well all during the tournament."

Both finalists moved over to the 195-yard, Par 3 second hole where a menacing pond sepa-rated the golfers from the pin. Horn drilled his ball about 50 feet from the pin, just off the green while Ryan responded with a shot that was equally good but to the left of the pin. Kevin's second shot got within 10 feet while Mike's attempt also fell short. Both made their third shots, keeping their hopes alive.

The third playoff hole proved fatal for Ryan. The 377-yard Par 4 had a lake lurking just over a small hill. Horn man-aged to sail his ball 230-yards, clearing the hazard.

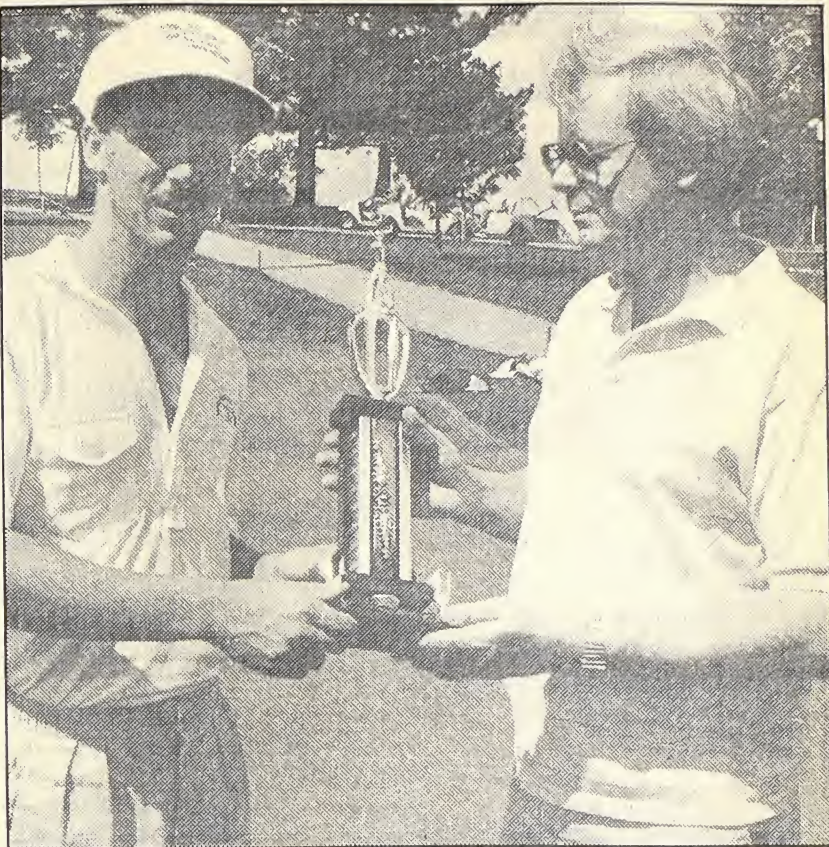

"I really thought it was over on that first hole," reiterated Horn after he had sank his win-ning putt. "I had heard he was a super putter. When he missed that shot I got a reprieve."

A member of the Wayne State University varsity golf team and the MVP for the Tar-tars the past two years, Horn is a Dearborn Heights native.

Ryan's 148 total gave him the City of Inkster title.

Playing in near 100 degree heat which took its toll on the golfers, the city championships determine the titles for the cities of Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, Garden City and Canton Township.

Westland's Murray Brooks set the first round pace as he

Congratulations

Associated Newspapers Publisher David Willett (at right) presents Michael Horn with the medalist trophy during ceremonies at Hill-top Sunday afternoon. Horn survived a thrilling "sudden death" playoff to defeat Inkster's Kevin Ryan at the 27th annual City Championship Golf tournament, sponsored by the parks and re-creation departments in the area and The Associated News-papers.

carded a 73 to lead the 75 gol-fers who had accepted the chal-lenge. However, Brooks got into trouble early during the second round and took a seven for the first hole and wasn't able to remain with the pack. He finished the round with a 82 and his two-day total of 155 earned for him the Westland city title. Brooks received little

World class softball clubs to compete in Wayne

Morris Associates won the Budweiser Class C World qualifier held last weekend at Rotunda Fields.

Morris, sporting a line-up that includes a handful of local softball stars, went undefeated in the 16-team tournament scoring 83 runs in five games. Winning the tournament qualified Morris for entry into the world tournament which will be conducted Labor Day weekend at its home fields at the Canton Softball Center.

Setting the pace for the winners at the plate were Westlanders Terry Johnson, who batted .824; Wayne's Larry Quartuccio, who finished with a .778 batting average; Bob Fallow - .733; Bill Malcolm - .714; Jim Kholmman - .643; Dennis Rogowski - .636 and Marc Friar - .563.

Named to the all-tournament team were Fallow, Friar, Johnson and Rogowski.

Terry Johnson was picked the MVP for the tournament and other members of the Morris line-up included: Dave Conlin, Cliff Davidson, Bob Fields, Greg Maxwell, Ken Liedel and Don Staples.

Morris defeated Shakin 23-8; Brass Nail, 10-6; Killibrew Construction 17-2; and Lux-ury Lanes 17-2.

This year's tournament is sponsored by Morris Associates and Coors Beer in con-junction with the Michigan United States Slo-Pitch Softball Association and hosted by the Morris Association Softball Club.

A field of the finest softball clubs in Michigan will participate in the 10th annual Leonard J. Anderson Invitational which will take place July 25-26-27 at Anderson Fields on Howe Road and Annapolis in Wayne.

Ford Adray, Number 2 in the nation in Class B Industrial and runner-up in the 1985 world tournament promises to give entries a real battle. Jamies of Westland ranked Number 5 in the state in Class A should also make a good tournament opponent.

Morris, the host team, is ranked 7th in the state in Class C and boasting in its line-up players that includes previous Ander-son tournament MVPs such as Bill Mal-colm and Bill Crews along with Rogowski, a name that has appeared on many of the top teams in the area's line-up cards and is currently second to Jamies in the Super B Division at the Canton Softball Center.

A black and white photograph of three men standing on a golf course, each holding a trophy. The man on the left is wearing a light-colored short-sleeved shirt and dark trousers. The man in the center is wearing a horizontally striped short-sleeved shirt and dark trousers. The man on the right is wearing a light-colored short-sleeved shirt and dark trousers. They are all smiling and looking towards the camera. The background shows a grassy area with trees and a building in the distance.

After firing a sizzling three-over-par 73 the first day, Murray Brooks (center) lost his opportunity to win it all when he turned in an 82 for the championship round. However, Brooks' 155 earned for him the city title for Westland. Ted A. Thompson (at left) was runner-up in Westland with a 168, while Irv Lalonde walked away with the third place trophy with a 173.

ANP photos by Guy Warren

Inkster's Kevin Ryan (not pictured) missed his chances to win medalist honors when he lost a "sudden death" playoff to Michael Horn. But his 148 captured the city title for Inkster. Finishing second and third in Inkster were Lacy Hill (center) and Richard Coleman who were presented their trophies by recreation official Ruth Williams.

Westland's Pamela Thompson presents Ken Eck the first place trophy for the Westland first flight. Eck had problems the first day in the sizzling heat and scored an 88 but came back with a 78 the next day for a 166 total that would have placed him second in the championship flight if he had made the cut.

All's fair in fun and games

The thermometer bubbled over at 90 degrees and the sun beamed down brightly on the hordes of city and country folks who flocked to the county fairgrounds last week to visit the annual Wayne County Fair.

Some fair goers opted for the goats and the geese and tiny sheep as the herds and litters of animals were primed, preened and judged over and over again.

Others took the day off for a ride on the merry-go-round or a chance of luck in the game tents.

Still others nibbled and knawed at the host of fine foods, fresh baked goods and unusual delicacies to whet their whistles and satisfy their hunger.

Ligia Paulino was crowned queen to reign over the six-day event and dozens of local residents took top honors in the many judging competitions.

And as the merriment and laughter came to an end, the matter still left behind echoed the sign of another successful event.

ANP photostory by Ray Day and Guy Warren

the letter writer

Dear Letter Writer:

My credit card balance with an oil company is high and, due to personal difficulties, I have not made timely payments. I have always had a good record with the company and wish to be able to continue to use my card while I make regular, catch-up payments.

Sincerely, FMJ

Dear Oil Company Representative:

I have had a credit card with your company since the early 1960s. During the past 20 years, my account balances have been much higher than they presently are and my payments have never been delinquent.

In December of 1985, I encountered some financial difficulties which made it stressful for me to make a timely payment. I wrote a letter indicating that I would bring my account up to date within a few weeks. I was met with a written response from you indicating that I had not established a fixed time frame. Your immediate reaction was to suspend my card usage privileges.

ginny
eades

I then placed a telephone call to you in an attempt to make agreeable payment arrangements. In my opinion, I clearly acted promptly and in good faith.

By this letter, I am, once again, setting forth my intentions to set this matter straight. I must reiterate, however, that I feel I have been handled in a capricious and arbitrary fashion. As a long-time customer, it would have benefited your company to have worked with me in arriving at an amicable resolution.

By this letter, I am also requesting an immediate reinstatement of my credit card privileges.

I look forward to your prompt response and will forward payment to you as soon as my balance owing has been made clear to me.

Should you have any questions or need any additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely FMJ

COMMENTS:

Soon after receipt of this letter, the oil company representative called FMJ and together they worked out a livable payment plan. FMJ indicated that they were unwilling to reinstate her card privileges until payment was made in full. Although this caused FMJ difficulty, it is easy to understand that when a disposable item, such as gasoline is charged, payment must be immediate. It is very difficult for most individuals to pay for services rendered and "use up" after the fact. The company did, however, agree to reinstate her card as soon as she was paid in full. Remember, they could have taken legal action which would have caused problems and, more importantly, affected FMJ's credit rating.
